

My name is Rudy Guerra. I currently live in Anaheim, and I've lived here for four years now. I would say I'm hardworking. I'm pretty much a homebody. I like to be on my own at a peaceful kind of setting.

I like to go around and explore everything that's in the OC. There's a lot to do here. I go out to eat a lot. I work here at Disneyland as well, so you kind of adapt a culture from that as well. That's how it's kind of like to be me in OC.

My biggest struggle currently is probably the fact of having to pay bills all the time, because OC is expensive, and we all have to kind of admit that.

Like I said, there's a lot to do here, so you're never really bored. There's a lot of stuff to see. I like going to the beaches. A lot of nice beaches to check out. That's probably the best part about it. It can be aesthetically pleasing sometimes. I spent my day there yesterday for a few hours over at Corona Del Mar.

Hate-free OC? Pretty simple. Everybody be kind to one another, just be respectful, and just don't be rude to anyone 'cause that creates a domino effect.

Check everything out in OC. If there's something that you haven't done, but you wanted to do, it's probably worth it. Like I've said earlier, just be kind to everyone. Everyone here is chill for the most part, so keep the vibe going.
