

Kin Chan's Story

My name is Kin Chan. I currently live in Santa Ana, where I've lived for 11 years.

I would describe myself as outgoing, awkward and friendly.

To be me in Orange County? I don't know, I'm just a regular person.... I think my experiences are normal.

My biggest struggle right now is finding love. Hahaha.

I think what hate-free means to me is when you see that someone needs help. I would go and help them. And if someone is already helping them, I would head over to see they have everything they need. Just to make sure their struggle is a little bit easier. Treat them how you want to be treated.

My advice to residents of Orange County is to just treat everyone how you want to be treated, if not someday Karma will hit you.
