

Laura Becerra's Story

My name is Laura Becerra. I live in Fullerton and I have been living in the Orange County for 13 years.

I would describe myself as easygoing and a hard worker.

To be me in Orange County is interesting. I like it and it is fun. It is nice to live in Orange County with culturally diverse people. I feel at home.

My biggest struggle right now is paying my debt and trying not to spend any money.

My greatest joy at the moment is working out.

I love the restaurants in Orange County and how they are so diverse. I also love the schools.

A hate-free OC looks like people not flipping each other off on the freeway or in the street (laugh). Honking at each other, maybe people being politer to each other every day. Just people being nice to each other every day.

My advice to Orange County residents would be to get to know your neighbor show some interest. I think if we all did that it would be such a nice place in Orange county.
